NOVEMBER, 1971

Annual Giving Keeps Steady Pace

Annual Giving stands at $90,013 from 1,307 donors in early November—ahead of last year's pace as the final two-month spurt begins toward reaching the $160,000 goal for 1971.

Latest figures show $47,751 of this total from 875 alumni, $9,000 from 120 parents and $33,262 from 312 other friends. The Johnson Club sub-total is $27,000.

All categories are running ahead of 1970 at this date, and alumni and friends who have not yet given are urged to join in support.

The 1970 program produced $152,422, the third straight year to go over the $150,000 mark in support of such worthy objectives as scholarship aid for students and salary increases for faculty.

PC Gets Final $40,000 Of $200,000 Challenge

Presbyterian College has received the final $40,000 payment on a $200,000 challenge grant offered to PC by an anonymous foundation in connection with its recent capital funds campaign in Georgia.

President Marc C. Weersing, in making the announcement, said the $40,000 will be placed in the college endowment to help underwrite scholarships for qualified students. He added:

"PC qualified for the initial $160,000 payment last winter under special stipulations of the $200,000 incentive grant made during our EPIC campaign in the Georgia Synod. The foundation, which insists upon anonymity while being highly selective in the institutions it supports, also has given PC $150,000 in an earlier campaign."

The EPIC drive, assisted by the challenge grant, raised more than $1 million for Presbyterian College among Georgia Presbyterians, who share its support with the South Carolina Synod.

Trustees Meet Dec. 6-7

The board of trustees will hold its annual fall meeting on campus on December 6-7 under the leadership of Chairman James A. Chapman, Jr., of Spartanburg, Vice-Chairman Ross Templeton of Charlotte and Secretary William L. Watkins of Anderson.

Toward new library:

Now a $10,000 Challenge Looking for Takers

A $10,000 challenge to encourage additional support for the proposed new library comes from the man who already is acknowledged as PC's biggest individual benefactor.

James H. Thomason, Sr., of Laurens offers the incentive gift if other donors will provide a total of $190,000 for the new facility which was a major objective of the recent EXCEL campaign. Thomason, for whom the library will be named, subscribed $250,000 to that campaign and then added a $500,000 deferred gift of real estate.

Although EXCEL topped its $2 million goal, more funds are needed to help underwrite the cost of the projected library and physical education center. Plans aim toward starting construction by mid-1972.

Thomason is a self-made businessman who achieved his notable success through the automotive industry, stock market and real estate.

BOARD OF VISITORS

The board of visitors 1971 Outstanding Service awards went to Associate Professor S. Allen King of the English department since 1959 and Mrs. Robert B. Hellams, recently retired after 26 years as infirmary supervisor. Below, King receives the citation from President Weersing while Development Director Robert McCaslin looks on; and Mrs. Hellams, from Dr. Delmar Rhame of Clinton, who as college physician was long associated with her.

At its annual campus meeting the board of visitors presented its Chairman's Cup for service to John N. McLaurin of North Augusta, retiring chairman, and elected these new officers: Philip A. Dohn, Jr., of Atlanta, chairman; J. Leonard Bruce of Cornelia, Ga., vice-chairman; John A. Montgomery of Columbia, vice-chairman; and Mrs. R. E. Ferguson, Jr., of Clinton, secretary. Leaders shown above with President Weersing are (l. to r.) Bruce, Montgomery, McLaurin, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. George Cornelson of Clinton as retiring secretary and Dohn during campus visit.

Scholarships Honor Simpson and Davis

Scholarships honoring two beloved Presbyterian ministers of South Carolina have been established at PC through the spontaneous combined efforts of their many friends.

A total of more than $20,500 is now invested as part of the College endowment to underwrite the Reverend T. Ellison Simpson Scholarship ($11,300) and the Reverend John W. and Sue Davis Scholarship ($9,285). And additional funds continue to come in for these scholarships which will provide financial aid for worthy young people who need help to attend PC.

T. Ellison Simpson of Society Hill, a 1900 graduate of PC who celebrated his 92nd birthday last February, continues as a supply minister in nearby churches after an active ministry which included pastorates in Hendersonville, N. C., Darlington and Society Hill.

John and Sue Davis returned to Kingtree in 1964 to make their home in retirement. He had spent 24 years (1920-44) as minister of Kingtree's Williamsburg Church before moving to the Mindel, La., Church and then back to South Carolina to serve the Johnston and Trenton churches, 1954-64. He has continued to supply pulpits since retirement.

Funds for these scholarships came from scores of contributors from throughout this state and from other states, persons whose lives had been deeply touched by these three devoted servants of God.

First undergraduate program in nation:

PC to Train Associate Guidance Counselors

The nation's first undergraduate program to train associate guidance counselors is being instituted at Presbyterian College to help meet the pressing needs of high schools for qualified guidance personnel.

Dr. Claude H. Cooler, chairman of the PC psychology department, has just received provisional approval from the South Carolina State Board of Education which only last spring became the first in the country to adopt this innovative program. The new requirements enable an individual to qualify as an associate counselor with his undergraduate degree, whereas counselor certification requirements previously included a bachelor's degree plus two years of teaching experience and a master's degree in guidance and counseling.

In anticipation of approval, Presbyterian College already has its psychology curriculum geared for the program and next June will graduate seven seniors as associate guidance counselors. In addition to specified course work, the program also requires a full-time internship of one term under the direction of a certified counselor in his school setting. PC also offers four graduate-level courses which may be applied toward the master's in counseling.

Dr. Cooler, who serves as coordinator of the PC counselor training program, worked actively with the State Education Department over the past two years in the development of the undergraduate training program for school counselors. He said: "Our State Education Department recognized that the need is urgent. South Carolina law requires that each accredited secondary school must have one qualified full-time guidance counselor for each 500 students. Because counselors are in very short supply, it has become essential to train additional personnel as quickly as possible. The associate counselor program is one answer, and other states already have indicated an interest in following South Carolina's lead."

Provisional approval means PC is to move ahead with its full program while making certain modifications suggested by the visiting committee of the State Department of Education. Dr. Cooler said other South Carolina colleges and universities hope to offer this type of counselor training in the future.
